My objective is to strengthen my role as a professor / educator / mentor in a higher education missional setting. It is my plan to use my research and education as a springboard into bringing about a greater wealth of knowledge in Pentecostal and pneumatological studies within Christianity through academia, researching, teaching and publication. I desire to do this, not only through being an educator, but also through mentoring and discipleship.

WORK EXPERIENCE

Assistant Professor of Theology
Southeastern University / 2017-2020

At Southeastern University (SEU), I taught on a four / four contract. During my time at SEU, I served as the head of the student success committee for the Barnett College of Ministry and Theology, developed multiple online courses for the School of Unrestricted Education, spearheaded the colleges blog (formerly ecclesiam.com) and podcast (Everyday Theology). Below are sample courses taught and developed:

- Christ Culture and the University – a class focused on Faith integration, critical thinking, and cultural engagement.
- Biblical Hermeneutics
- Survey of Christian Theology
- Systematic Theology I – Covering the topics of God and Humanity
- Systematic Theology II – Covering the topics of Soteriology, Eschatology, and Ecclesiology
- Pastoral Theology
- New Testament Survey

Adjunct Instructor of Theology
SUM College, Southeastern University / 2012 – Current

I have been contracted by various colleges and universities to both teach online and develop online courses for them. I am also in conversation with London School of Theology to be a distance lecturer. Below is a sample list of courses taught and /or developed

- Ministry in a Postmodern Context – SUM College
- Pentecostal Theology – SUM College
- Biblical Hermeneutics – SEU
- Systematic Theology I – SEU
- Systematic Theology II – SEU
- Person and Work of Christ (Spring 2021) – London School of Theology

Creator of Everyday Theology (everydaytheology.online)
2015

Everyday Theology is both a blog and podcast

- Created a team of student editors to publish one article a week within the realms of the Church, the Inner Life, Theology and Bible, Current Topics, and a special section devoted to student publications.
- Successfully applied with the International Centre for the registration of serial publications (CIEPS) to gain an International Standard Serial Number (ISSN).
- Guests have included: Carolyn Custis James, Ed Gungor, Brian Zahnd, Thomas Jay Oord, Kelly Kapic, Doug Petersen, Andre Henry, Rick Wadholm, Miroslav Volf, Ray Allen, Jonathan Merritt, Ben Lowe, Brad Lomenick, Gabriel Salguero, A.J.
